

Personal Recollections of Cavalryman With Custers Michigan Cavalry Brigade in the Civil War (Classic Reprint)

In preparing this book it has not been the purpose of the author to write a complete historical sketch of the Michigan cavalry brigade. Such a history would require a volume as large for the record of each regiment; and, even then, it would fall short of doing justice to the patriotic services of that superb organization. The narrative contained in the following pages is a story of the personal recollections of one of the troopers who rode with Custer, and played a part small it is true, but still a part in the tragedy of the civil war. As such it is modestly put forth, with the hope that it may prove to be an interesting story to those who read it. The author also trusts that it may contribute something, albeit but a little, toward giving Custer's Michigan cavalrymen the place in the history of their country which they so richly earned on many fields. Doubtless many things have been omitted that ought to have been included and some things written in that it might have been better to leave out. (Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and don't occur in the book.)
